ASKS $10,000 FOR HUSBAND'S DEATH

Minnie Bowman, Administratrix of Estate of R. L. Bowman, Brings Suit Against Tile Drain Co.

HE WAS KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Plaintiff Charges Defendant Allowed
Conditions to Exist Through Negligence.

Couched in a lengthy complaint of three paragraphs, suit was brought today in the Rush circuit court by Minnie Bowman, administratrix of the estate of Robert L. Bowman, of near Milroy, against the Milroy Tile Drain Company for ten thousand dollars damages on account of the death in 1910 of her husband, Robert L. Bowman, who was employed as nightwatchman at the Milroy Tile Drain Company's plant near Milroy, and who was killed in an explosion at the defendant's works.

Mrs. Bowman alleges that she was appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband April 21, 1911. In the first paragraph of the complaint it is said that the defendant made tile in kilns, in which gas was burned. It states that Bowman was engaged as watchman and that it was his duty to watch the fires and relight them in case any were extinguished.

It is charged that the defendant out of pure negligence, failed to attach a reducer or regulator to the burners in the kilns which would produce an even flow of gas and would prevent extinguishment of gas by an irregular flow. The plaintiff alleges that the Milroy Tile Drain Company knew all this and further knew that under such conditions gas might accumulate and cause an explosion. It is declared that Bowman had no knowledge of the real conditions.

In the second paragraph the plaintiff asserts that the tile are moulded of damp clay and that it is necessary for them to remain in the air for some time until the moisture in them is absorbed. Mrs. Bowman charges that tile moulded of damp clay were placed in the kilns before the moisture was absorbed which caused gas to generate in the kilns. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant knew these facts stated above to be true and yet allowed the damp tile to be placed in the kilns.

In the third paragraph Mrs. Bowman states that there should be ventilation in the kilns, but that there was none in the kilns of the Milroy Tile Drain Company. It is alleged in the complaint that damp, green tile placed in the kiln where there was an uneven flow of gas and much escaping gas, due to the fact that no reducer or regulator had been placed on the pipe lines carrying the gas into the kilns, would generate and cause an explosion.

Mrs. Bowman alleges that the defendant was well aware of these conditions and yet allowed them to remain unchanged. The complaint says that Bowman, the watchman, was unaware of the conditions and did not know that an explosion might result.

The complaint states that Bowman was attending to his duties one night in 1910 and was walking past one of the kilns when an explosion occurred. It is alleged that it was caused by gas generated by the process stated in the first three paragraphs. The plaintiff states that flying brick and debris struck Bowman, wounding and injuring him so that he died.

For this reason Mrs. Bowman asks for ten thousand dollars damages and all other proper relief from the Milroy Tile Drain Company. Watson, Tittsworth & Green are attorneys for the plaintiff.

It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Pea can not get along together and Pea has consented to go back to the Danville soldier's home where he was once. It is thought that Mrs. Pea will not cause any disturbances with her husband away.

WATSON NOT TO TRY NEWSPAPER GAME

Former Congressman Says That Alleged Deal at Richmond is Rumor
With no Foundation.

ASKED TO PURCHASE NEWS

Raymond Wehrly, editor of the Richmond Morning News today denied a story persistently circulated that the newspaper, now the Democratic organ of Wayne county, was to be purchased by a company in which several prominent Sixth district Republicans were interested. The stories told go so far as to connect the name of former Congressman James E. Watson with the deal. According to those actively identified with the paper they had never heard the former congressman was trying to break into the newspaper game in Richmond.

The above is a dispatch from Richmond and it is entirely rumor with no foundation whatever, according to Mr. Watson. Mr. Watson says that a man wrote him and asked if he wanted to purchase the Richmond Morning News. Mr. Watson answered at once that he would entertain no proposition whatever. He declares that he does not intend to break into the newspaper game.

WOULD LOCATE LOST HIERS HERE

Administrator of Estate of Alice Ida
Howard Writes Here to Learn of Descendants.

DAUGHTER OF COL. FERGUSON

Her Parents Are Married in Rush
County in 1842—Twelve
Children Born.

Persons in Rush county knowing themselves to be related to Mrs. Alice Ida Howard nee Ferguson, who is now deceased, may fall heir to an estate estimated to be worth between five and six thousand dollars, according to a letter written to the clerk of the Rush circuit court by Fred Funk, the administrator of the estate.

An effort is being made to locate heirs in this county as it was here that Mrs. Howard's parents were married. It is thought that they lived here for a number of years and there is an authentic report that they lived in Illinois later.

According to the letter written by the administrator Miss Catherine Noe and Calvin Ferguson were married here February eighth, 1842, as a marriage license was issued to them in this county on that date. There were twelve children born to this union and a record of the births sent here by the administrator shows the names of the children and the dates of their birth to be as follows: Mary Jane, 1845; Margaret Ann, 1846; John Fletcher, 1848; Charles Wesley, 1849; Sarah Lavina, 1853; Barbary Ellen, 1855; Phebe Catherine, 1857; Alice Ida, 1860; Henry Calvin, 1863; Frances Melvina, 1865; Delpha Delilah, 1867; Tobias Hezekiah, 1870, who died when he was seven years old.

Philip H. Quinlan, an attorney of South Bend, who is acting for Fred Funk, the administrator of the estate, was here today in relation to the matter. He said that he had started out to locate the lost heirs and intends to make every effort to find them. He declared that he would advertise all over Indiana and Illinois in an effort to learn the names of the heirs to whom the property rightfully belongs.

ROBERT MERRITT EXPIRES

Williamstown Farmer Dies in Eighty-Eighth Year of Senility.

Robert Merritt, age eighty-seven, eleven months and ten days, died at his home in Williamstown, located just over the Rush-Decatur county line, yesterday from a complication of diseases incident to old age. Mr. Merritt had been in poor health for some time and his death was expected before this time. He was born and reared near Brookville, but moved to Williamstown early in life where he had lived since. He was a prominent and well known farmer. One son survives.

MIRROR CAUSES CRASH.

One of the mirrors in the doors which lead into the Palace theater fell out and to the floor with a great crash last evening just after the first show opened. People from all over the business district were attracted to the place by the terrific noise which the falling glass made. The noise was heard for over a square.

Capt. J. B. Reeve, retired merchant and banker of North Main street, who has been seriously ill for some time, is said to be very low and little hopes are entertained for his recovery.

WILL PURSUE A DIFFERENT PLAN

Work of Capt. C. R. Cook, New Salvation Army Head, will be Constructive.

WILL CO-OPERATE WITH ALL

Capt. Popp, who Had His First Charge Here, Was Rash, But Meant Well.

Capt. C. R. Cook, the new head of the local corps of the Salvation Army, is here and it appears that he has a lot of vim and determination which he expects to exercise in Rushville. It is his declaration that his work will be constructive rather than destructive, as compared with Capt. I. C. Potts, who has been removed and returned to Anderson, after running his brief course in this city.

Capt. Cook is industrious and alert, so it seems. He has already, although he has been here only two days, instilled confidence into the members of the local corps. They are behind him to a unit and much good is expected to come from the work of the Salvation Army under the leadership of Capt. Cook. He is highly interested in his work and realizes that it is beneficial to the Army and to the city as a whole for the Army to work in perfect accord and unison with the city at large and with all of the religious institutions.

Capt. Cook comes here from Washington, Ind., a town in the southern part of the State where there is a large labor contingent. He did a great work there according to all reports and was highly successful in rehabilitating the corps. He held a tent revival meeting for six weeks there last summer and had twenty-eight conversions.

"I realize my position," said Capt. Cook this morning, "in relation with the city. It is my purpose and my duty to help build up the city rather than tear it down. I want to work together with all of the churches in the city. My work will be constructive always."

"It is not my fault or your fault if a man robs the bank down here on the corner. I should not blame the community for that. I intend to meet and talk with individuals concerning their soul's salvation. That is my duty here and I expect to follow out that line of work."

"Capt. Popp was young in the work and no doubt he did wrong in accusing the city of being wicked. It is not right to blame the city for what a few of its individual inhabitants do. But he was a young and enthusiastic fellow who doubtless felt that he was working for the best. He lives in Anderson and this was his first charge with the Salvation Army."

It will be remembered that Capt. Popp criticized Rushville severely for its wickedness and poverty and that he aroused a lot of dissent thereby. He reiterated at the time he had worked in many cities in this and other States and found this to be the worst city for its size in which he was ever in command.

In view of Capt. Popp's tender years his statements in regard to his past experiences and especially when his actions here were considered, were not given much credence and he caused feeling among the local charity workers here who had been assisting the Salvation Army, causing many of them to hold aloft from the army and withdraw their financial and moral support.

But, Capt. Cook, according to his opening assertions, will pursue an entirely different course and there is no doubt but what he will be received by the charity workers and they will co-operate with him.

Former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, who arrived here Wednesday, left Thursday for Panama with the Congressional Committee that will inspect work on the canal, says a New York dispatch. Cannon spent most of Wednesday night seeing the sights on Broadway with former Congressman James E. Watson of Rushville, Ind. He refused to talk seriously on any important topic.

WONDROUS TALES OF BIG KILLS HEARD

Usual Stories Incident to Hunting
Season Are Going Rounds Since Opening Yesterday.

ONE PARTY MAKES KILLING

Both yesterday and this morning hunters were seen on the streets of Rushville as early as five o'clock in the morning, all headed for the woods and fields for quail, rabbits and other game. Not only have local hunters been invading the Rush county fields, for a number of nimrods from Indianapolis and adjoining counties have been in this vicinity in quest of game as it is reported that there is a large crop of quail in this county.

Only sixty hunting licenses have been issued from the clerk's office so far this month, but it is expected that this number will be more than doubled before the month has passed. There have been no hunting accidents so far this season, but it is said that some farmers were afraid to go into their fields to work yesterday and today for fear some stray shot from a hunter's gun might find lodgment in their skin.

Wondrous stories of big kills have reached this city, but it is not likely that any of the stories will pan out as reported. A party composed of Fred Caldwell, James Smith, Hooker Wilson and Homer Cole bagged sixty-nine rabbits yesterday. The number of quail they killed—nobody knows.

COLD SNAP COMING; GET OUT EAR MUFFS

Weather Bureau Predicts Low Temperature Tonight and Tomorrow
Followed by Snow.

COLD WAVE IS ONE DAY LATE

The cold wave, although a day later than was expected, probably will be in Indiana tomorrow, says V. H. Church, section director of the United States weather bureau. The forecast issued today is that the temperature will fall tonight and early tomorrow, and that there will be rain. This will be followed by snow and the cold wave.

The unexpected rapidity with which a low pressure area formed in the southwest and moved into this region last night, prevented the movement of the cold wave eastward. There is zero weather in the mountain territory and as far eastward as Minnesota and Iowa. There was some snow throughout the entire region traversed by the cold weather.

The temperature which was hanging around the 60 degrees above zero mark is expected by the official forecaster to drop 25 degrees Sunday.

MOST PERFECT APPLES IN SHOW

Chris King, One of Four Rush County Exhibitors at Indiana Exhibit
Bears That Distinction.

JUDGE CAN'T CRITICIZE THEM

He and R. V. Fielding of Glenwood
Take More Firsts Than Any Other Exhibitors.

Apples from the central part of Indiana took the great majority of the prizes offered by the first Indiana apple show. To a certain extent this is thought to be due to the fact that the show was held in the central part of the State and was more easily accessible to the central apple growers. Of the eleven who won the most firsts, six came from the central part of the State and that section had two exhibitors that took twenty and twenty-one firsts, respectively. Chris King of Rushville took twenty-one firsts and R. V. Fielding of Glenwood, won twenty firsts.

Chris King also has the distinction of having exhibited the only perfect apples in the show. The judge, H. E. Vandeman said that the plate of Kings exhibited were beyond criticism in every respect, and he awarded the sweepstake prize to that plate without hesitation.

Grimes Golden apples were the unanimous choice of all the speakers for the most popular variety in the State. The first prize in that variety for the plate class went to the central section, John M. Beaver & Son of Glenwood taking it.

Some of the growers who took the most firsts and the number of awards follows: Chris King, twenty-one; R. V. Fielding, twenty; John M. Beaver & Son of Glenwood, six; School for Feeble Minded Youth, six; Frank Moffitt, Carmel, seven; William Walters & Son, Laporte, four; the Burton Fruit Company, Orleans, four; H. H. Swain, South Bend, four and S. A. Hazellett Greencastle, four.

The apple growers who attended the shows are enthusiastic in urging a repetition next year. They say that the biggest lesson they have learned is that skill and knowledge in packing are necessary before they can compete with western growers. H. E. Vandeman, the judge, from Washington, D. C., impressed this upon them at every opportunity.

The management of the show has been congratulated on having secured Mr. Vandeman to judge the exhibits. His national reputation and lack of acquaintance in this section was assurance of fairness in making the awards. Vandeman said that Indiana's first attempt was satisfactory.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE

Small Damage Results From Accident in Main Street.

A collision between the automobiles of Fred Caldwell and G. V. Conoway occurred this morning in front of the Mauzy Company store in Main street. No one was injured and only small damage was done to the machines. Mr. Conoway turned north in Main from East Third street and in doing so made a wide turn. Mr. Caldwell tried to avoid hitting him and steered to the left. As he did so, Mr. Conoway said a girl started to cross the street directly in front of his machine and to keep from running her down he went to the right, colliding with the other auto. Both machines were running slow and the collision was unavoidable.

FINAL EXAMINATION OF HULK OF MAINE

Board of Inspection Starts for Havana.

Washington, Nov. 11.—To inspect the wreck of the battleship Maine and report all possible data which it can gather, including the cause of the destruction of the vessel, a board of five army and navy officers departed today for Havana. The members of the board are Rear Admiral Vreeland, Chief Constructor Richard M. Watt, Colonel William Black, engineer corps; Commander Charles F. Hughes of the board of inspection and survey, and Commander Joseph Strauss, a powder expert.

The army engineers are ready to remove all the water from the cofferdam and disclose the hulk of the Maine for the investigation of the board.

After the board completes its investigation of the wreck the army engineers will lose no time in complying with the law of congress which provides for the removal of the hulk from Havana harbor. The after part of the ship, according to reports received here, can be floated and a bulkhead will be built so that this section can be raised and floated out to sea, where it will be sunk in deep water. The bow will have to be cut in sections and placed on scows and disposed of in the same manner.

The remains of more than fifty victims of the disaster have been recovered and will be buried in the Arlington national cemetery. The mainmast of the vessel will be erected over their graves as a memorial.

STATE RESISTS LABOR'S ACTION

Seeks Dismissal of Suit Involving Reformatory.

SAYS STATE CAN NOT BE SUED

Basing His Motion on This Ground, Attorney General Honan Asks That the Action Brought by the President of the State Federation of Labor For Annulment of Contracts For Prison Labor Be Dismissed.

Indianapolis, Nov. 11.—Attorney General Thomas M. Honan has filed a motion to dismiss the action brought in the Marion superior court by Edgar A. Perkins, president of the State Federation of Labor, against the authorities of the Indiana state reformatory, to annul the contracts made with a number of concerns for convict labor. The Perkins action was based on the grounds that the contracts in question were entered into after the general assembly had enacted a law against such contracts, although the law was not effective at the time the contracts were made. Mr. Perkins took the matter up with Governor Marshall some time before the suit was filed, and the governor told him the only way the contracts might possibly be broken was by action in court. Mr. Honan's motion to dismiss was on the grounds that the state could not be sued, and that the reformatory authorities were merely servants of the state.

Carmel People Find Investments in Texas to Be Valueless.

Carmel, Ind., Nov. 11.—A number of residents of Carmel, who paid a man representing himself as a land agent, $3.50 for deeds to property in Texas, have been informed that the land is a swamp and the postoffice near which the property was supposed to be, was discontinued by the government long ago. The advice received from Texas was to the effect that if the deeds were legal the property they conveyed was not worth the price paid for it.

The agent had promised to take a number of purchasers to Texas to show them their land, but he cannot now be found.

CORPORATION TAKES OVER GIFT BUSINESS

Andrew Carnegie Relieves Himself of Responsibility.

New York, Nov. 11.—In 5 per cent first mortgage bonds of the United States Steel corporation, Andrew Carnegie has turned over $25,000,000 to the Carnegie Corporation of New York, the body which was incorporated by the legislature on June 9 of this year for the purpose, practically, of taking over Mr. Carnegie's work in connection with the educational institutions, libraries and hero funds. The income of which the incorporators will have the disposition is a million and a quarter a year.

The gift was announced at a meeting of the incorporators held in Mr. Carnegie's home, where the incorporators met for the first time. Mr. Carnegie was elected president; Senator Root was elected vice president; Mr. Franks treasurer, and Mr. Bertram, Mr. Carnegie's secretary, was chosen secretary of the corporation.

It is intended that the business of founding and aiding libraries and educational institutions, which has been carried on by Mr. Carnegie as an individual will be turned over to the corporation and will be carried on hereafter by the corporation. The act legalizing the corporation makes the incorporators a body corporate to carry out the purposes of the fund.

The Carnegie Corporation has nothing to do with the previously organized institutions bearing the name of Carnegie except as its trustees feel that the purposes of the corporation will be subserved by aiding one or another of these institutions. As those associated with him in the present beneficence understand Mr. Carnegie's motives, the man who has given so many millions is desirous in his old age of relieving himself of the responsibility of giving.

TURKS ATTEMPT TO REGAIN CITY

An Unsuccessful Attack On Italian Position.

AEROPLANE CORPS ASSISTED

Combined Firing of Shore Artillery and the Warships in the Harbor, Aided by Aeroplanes Which Dropped Bombs on the Enemy, Repulsed a Strong Force of Turks and Arabs With Heavy Loss.

Constantinople, Nov. 11.—The newspapers say that the Eighty-third Italian regiment, which has just arrived at Tripoli, has been badly cut up, losing 200 killed and 85 prisoners in the past few days' fighting.

Rome, Nov. 11.—The first engagement of importance since Oct. 26 was fought yesterday, say dispatches received here from Tripoli. In honor of the Mohammedan festival a combined Turkish and Arab force apparently tried to recapture the town, but did not succeed. The attack began to the eastward lines early in the morning and developed all along the lines. The enemy in considerable strength supported by artillery, attacked with great bravery and determination, but was unable to withstand the combined firing of the artillery and the warships, which poured shell into them, while the quick-firing guns and the rifles in the trenches kept up an almost incessant firing.

The batteries posted the other day at Fort Hamidieh were the most effective. The aeroplanes greatly assisted in the fighting for eight hours. The enemy was repulsed about midday.

The official dispatches do not mention the casualties on either side. Unofficially it is said that the execution in the Turkish ranks was tremendous. Because of the numbers of the Turks and Arabs it is evident that recently they have been reinforced.

The admiralty has sent fast passenger steamers plying between Naples and Sicily to act as auxiliary cruisers at Tripoli.

TO CORROBORATE DEAN

Famous Dictograph May Yet Be Used in Gary Trial.

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 11.—The uses to which the state may put the dictograph records of Thomas B. Dean's alleged conversation with C. A. Williston, city engineer of Gary, now charged with bribery, were more clearly defined by Judge Van Fleet, and it now appears that the instrument will play an important part in corroborating the testimony of Dean.

Judge Van Fleet refused to permit typewritten copies of the dictograph record to be submitted in primary evidence. At that time Dean's story of his conversation with Williston was not in evidence. After Dean had told his story of the conversation and had asserted the dictograph recorded it, the state attorneys found nothing in the ruling to prevent the use of the dictograph to corroborate Dean's story.

Will Investigate Former Deaths.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Jane Quinn, two of whose three former husbands died from bullet wounds, has been held on charge of murder without bond by a coroner's jury. The jury, refusing to credit Mrs. Quinn's story that her last husband, John M. Quinn, was killed by burglars, declared its belief that his wife shot him to death. An investigation will be made of the deaths of the two former husbands of the woman, John McDonald and Warren Thorpe.

Newton Dougherty Paroled.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 11.—Newton Dougherty, formerly treasurer of the Peoria school board, who was sent to Joliet for an indefinite term, has been paroled by the state board of pardons. Dougherty's peculations during his tenure in the school board position amounted to close to $800,000, and his prosecution attracted wide attention because of his prominence.

Injunction Against Strikers.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 11.—A temporary injunction has been issued by Judge Humphrey in the United States circuit court, restraining the striking employees of the Illinois Central railroad from picketing the plants of the company, and enjoining them from using any method of intimidation to induce the men who have taken the strikers' places to quit work.

Mob Clamors For Negro.

The courts having accepted the reorganization, we are waiting to see if the cigars of the Tweededum Tobacco Company sell any cheaper than those of the Tweedledee Tobacco company.

Mrs. Fanny Bullock Workman climbed 21,300 feet in the Himalayas, but in view of the difficulty in getting groceries delivered it is not a suitable site for a summer cottage.

Mr. Taft went to Kentucky to see a statue unveiled, but as Congress is now coming on, it will be useless for anyone to try to get him for a fireman's ball.

While the congressmen are preparing their speeches on the trust question, what the people really want to know is whether they will vote to make the mountain laurel the national flower.

Secretary MacVeagh wants the government clerks pensioned, but so long as a cruel government compels any of them to labor seven hours a day, all humanitarians will try to secure a shortening of their toil.

In this year's elections, the use of the automobile by political candidates was more noticeable than ever before, and makes a marked change in campaign methods.

The subject of industrial education during the last five years has attracted sufficient interest in this country to warrant a convention being held annually. This, in itself, is a promising sign and indicates that an important subject is now coming into its own. There was a time when men didn't think it was necessary to prepare through education for industrial advancement, but, happily, that time has past and we are living in an age when education for industrial development has been found to be a thing far too advantageous to overlook.

It is evident that the Indianapolis Sun and the Richmond Palladium are "ferminst" the Taft administration, says the Brookville American. This is no surprise to any one acquainted with the management of the two papers. The surprise would be to see them supporting any policy of government which did not offer a chance for a spectacular campaign. What ever is "catchy goes."

That low, scraping sound to the southward is a state administration, says the Marion Chronicle, elected on a platform which arraigned extravagance and proposed economy and retrenchment, scraping the bottom of the barrel in an effort to pay the vastly increased current expenses of the commonwealth. Governor Durbin used to say that there never was a democratic state administration in Indiana which did not increase the state debt, and never a Republican state administration which not decreases it, and in the light of events Colonel Durbin is revealed not only as about the best business executive the state ever had, but as something of a prophet.

Election results show that the great popular revolt against stand-pat Republicanism which was registered at the polls one year ago continues with hardly any abatement. Local issues or personal relations in some places have had their effect, but in the main and latest expression at the polls in various states proves that the people's memory is long and that their grievance is lasting.

The above is the way the St. Louis Republic sums up the situation. It allows for the Republican victories by explaining that local issues or personal relations had their effect. That explanation is hardly sufficient. Such broad assertions are to be taken at their worth. If the St. Louis Republic would have its readers believe such statements it might explain more fully.

Democrat or Republican, it is the man and not the party who is to count. We can imagine, for instance, that a good deal of thinking might be done in the Sixth district of Indiana if James E. Watson should run against Finly Gray. When Gray was elected the first time it was a repudiation of what his opponent stood for. If he ran against Watson the next election we should see the people of that neighborhood comparing records.—Indianapolis Sun.

Of course the Indianapolis Sun knows full well that James E. Watson would defeat Finly Gray were he to run. If it is as the Sun says, the man and not the party, Mr. Gray would most likely suffer by comparison. But it is rather the issues for which the men stand. If people of this day and age are to vote for the man and not consider the doctrines which they preach, we know a lot of chautauqua orators who could be president with very little effort, when they would have no business on a town board.

W. D. Crow, editor of the Petersburg Press, Republican, has written an editorial to show why he refuses to quit the editorial desk in order to become a "mere congressman." Mr. Crow has been mentioned favorably as a possible aspirant for the Republican nomination in the First district. In order that the boom may not get beyond his control Editor Crow sets himself to squelch the thing editorially. He does a neat and effective job. Among other things he says: "The Press will do anything it can do for the good of the party, but it will not sacrifice a first class editor for a bum congressman. The editor has had about all the political glory that can come to one man. He has been a member of either the city or county Republican organization since he was old enough to vote. That should satisfy the greed of the worst glutton for glory. What business has a guileless, unsophisticated country editor in congress, anyway? The duty of the editor is to the old subscriber."

Ten years ago a candidate who when outside the metropolitan district made three speeches in 24 hours thought he was doing a good day's work. He would address a country audience in the afternoon, and a couple of rallies in the evening, going from one town to another by train.

Now a candidate is expected to make anywhere from a dozen to 25 speeches daily and may cover 50 to 100 miles by motor car.

Villages that were never before addressed by a candidate for high office have had the satisfaction of gripping one by the hand, and receiving his complimentary palaver with their own ears.

The five minute speech to the cross road audience may be exceedingly effective or it may be worse than useless. It takes many candidates about five minutes to get the wordy introductions out of the way, and when the chauffeur reminds them that they are due at the next town as soon as he can get there, they leave without having given their audience any definite impression good or bad.

A candidate who has ever had newspaper experience will do better. In five minutes he should be able to say 500 words, as much as the average newspaper editorial. Let him dispense with his decorative introductions and plunge to the heart of his subject as the editorial writer does.

The Chinese people can not be blamed for being revolutionists at this time. They should have revolted long ago.

When about 200 years ago, the Manchus descended from Manchuria on the pliant Chinese they subjugated them to such a degree that every Manchu got a place on the pension list permanently. One newspaper likens the situation in China to what would exist in the United States if nobody had a voice in the government or could hold office except the hereditary residents of Massachusetts, all of whom lived on pensions paid by the rest of us.

No wonder the heavens has at last worked in the great, inert mass. No other people on earth, having oneth the civilization of the Chinese, would have so long endured a condition so intolerable.

Other intolerable conditions exist in China which will, no doubt, receive attention and consideration as soon as the present matter is straightened out and China has become a firm republic. These intolerable conditions are odious treaties and agreements which have been forced upon China by European nations—treaties which they themselves would not tolerate a minute. Every dog has his day, and China's is fast approaching.

EDITORIALETTES.

Write it 11-11-11 today. It's a chance of a lifetime.

The faithful few will kindly note today how we abstained at a great sacrifice. We refrained from discussing the cold wave which was due this afternoon. It is always great sport to take a slant at the weather because it is so elusive and withal that so indefinite. But there are other things, yo' know.

For instance there is woman who is little discussed. She is a queer human being who likes to stay at home o' nights, sew and knit and darn; who never gives a rap about the fashions like the men do; who is content with attending the nickels and occasionally, with entertaining.

It's a wise routine to follow; never be in your place of business when a person wants to borrow money of you, because if you are in you will be out and if you are out you will be in.

Anyway there's a lot of pure cussedness in domestic wrangles that get by as artistic temperament.

Massachusetts man was poisoned by handling money, the press dispatches say. However, a lot of us will take the risk.

Connecticut man sued the girl who turned him down for $12.32 he lavished on her during their courtship. It ought to be worth a least a hundred dollars to be free from an admirer such as he.

One reason why secret marriages always are made known is because three people must know when the service is performed. There is no significance to that remark else we would not have made it.

One way to keep people from finding out about your bad temper is not to lose it.

MILROY TAKES SLOW GAME

Eurekas Defeat Clarksburg at Milroy by Score of 33 to 8.

The Eurekas, an Independent basket ball team of Milroy, won from the Clarksburg team on the former's floor last night by a score of thirty-three to eight. The game was slow throughout as the Decatur county lads could not do more than play on the defensive and keep Milroy from scoring points. Milroy's team is exceptionally strong and the manager would like to arrange dates with strong independent fives all over the State.

MANY GO FOR BIG FOOTBALL GAME

Illinois-Indiana Contest at Indianapolis This Afternoon Attracts Large Local Contingent.

MUCH INTEREST IN GAME HERE

Local interest in the football game between Indiana University and the University of Illinois which was to be played in Indianapolis this afternoon was keyed up to a high pitch here today. The contest promised to be one of the best ones in the middle west this season and for that reason many people were attracted to Indianapolis for the event. There are many Indiana University alumni in this city and county and many of them attended the game today. Besides the alumni there is a large number of students and former students, together with their parents, who took a great interest in the game. It was estimated this afternoon that the greatest contingent that ever was present at an Indianapolis football game attended.

SOCIETY NEWS

The Ladies Musicales will meet on Monday afternoon with Mrs. A. L. Aldridge at her home in North Perkins street.

AMUSEMENTS

The Portola will show the famous Edison production tonight entitled "Foul Play." The story is a very thrilling one and is told in three reels.

The Princess will have for the Saturday night's program a great historical picture and another fine drama. "The Declaration of Independence" is an Edison film and is said to be very realistic. The other is an interesting drama, "Through the Window."

At last what our forefather's passed through can be seen as it was to them, in a great motion picture entitled "Life on the Border," portraying the frontier life true to history, is the first picture to be shown at the Palace tonight. "Two White Roses" is the title of an Edison, a very strong drama of recent make. Press comment says: "This is one of Edison's best." The pictures as the Palace last night showed to crowded houses and Miss Leona Thomas' violin solo was greatly appreciated. She will furnish the music tonight. As heretofore the continuous show will not be given on account of the Saturday's crowd, but as soon as the people pass out the show will start, giving everybody a chance to see the first of each reel.

For two nights and one matinee at the Shubert Murat theater, Indianapolis, commencing November 14, Miss Grace LaRue will appear in her latest success "Betsy," a comedy-opera which is lively with bright lines, laughable entanglements and surprising situations. Since Miss LaRue's appearance as leading lady with Sam Bernard in "Nearly a Hero," as star in the musical comedy, "Molly May" and in "Madam Troubadour," no character has offered her greater opportunities than that of Betsy, the dashing widow, who to gain the man she wants, marries the man she does not want. There are seventeen musical numbers, including "Dream Love," the waltz that bids fair to outrival the Merry Widow waltz. Byron Chandler has made a notably pictorial production and surrounded Miss LaRue with such players and singers as Cecil Jarvis Ryan, John Willard, Worthington L. Romaine, Geo. W. Callahan, Alfred Deery, Donald Buchanan, Juliette Lange, Lavina Shannon, Myrtle Jersey and Lucie Carter. A popular matinee will be given Wednesday.

COON HUNTERS OUT WITH GRUNT

They Wail About Conservation and Say Value of Timber Protects Animals of Today.

CAN NOT CUT DOWN TREES

That period in history when a farmer boy lighted his bullseye lantern, shouldered his ax, whistled for his favorite coon dog and struck out through the inky darkness for the nearest forest in quest of the elusive coon is gone, and gone forever. It was once a time honored custom among coon hunters to cut down a forest tree and ruthlessly capture Mr. Coon in his den.

A new movement called the conservation of forests has enlisted the support of practically every farmer and coon hunters dare not touch a single bough which shelters Mr. Coon in his lair high above ground in these days. Trees with a market value of from $25 to $50 come under the head of treasured properties these days, and their owners do not permit Tom, Dick and Harry to cut them down promiscuously.

CHAPTER VII.

In no blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. He settled down in St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cub-reporters on the hotel-run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules, and prepared himself to take a hand.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold-mining boom was fairly started—"just to try a flutter," as he phrased it to himself. The flutter on the Tonopah Stock Exchange lasted just ten days, during which time his smashing, wild-bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gambled Florida into his fist, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his lips, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good, and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the papers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big-letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the Sour-doughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was forcibly launched into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the flotsam and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defense he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworth, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworth had proposed him. And it was well that Daylight played closely at first, for he was astounded by the multitudes of sharks—"ground-sharks," he called them—that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworths, alone; and, while he met them in good fellowship, he chummed with none, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, even he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such a kindly humanness about the man, such a genial democraticness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhammers. Nor did his looks belie his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firmly hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively.

It was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett had been the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of several lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. The bald sentences seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight conned the words over and over. That was it. The big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely, for no other reason would one man so peremptorily invite another man to make a journey across the continent.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificent country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of

"I Must Say, Mr. Harnish, That You Whipped Us Roundly in That Affair."

Daratona. He, likewise, struck Daylight as a man of power, though he was puzzled in that he could find no likeness to Dowsett. Except in the matter of cleanliness—a cleanliness that seemed to go down to the deepest fibers of him—Nathaniel Letton was unlike the other in every particular. Thin to emaciation, he seemed a cold flame of a man. Not more than fifty, thatched with a sparse growth of iron-gray hair, he looked several times the age of Dowsett.

They drank—that is, Nathaniel Letton took mineral water served by the smoothly operating machine of a lackey who inhabited the place, while Dowsett took Scotch and soda and Daylight a cocktail. Leon Guggenhammer arrived in the midst of the drink, and ordered Scotch. Daylight studied him curiously. This was one of the great Guggenhammer family; a younger one, but nevertheless one of the crowd with which he had locked grapples in the North. Nor did Leon Guggenhammer fail to mention cognizance of that old affair. He complimented Daylight on his prowess—"The echoes of Ophir came down to us, you know. And I must say, Mr. Daylight—er, Mr. Harnish, that you whipped us roundly in that affair."

Leon Guggenhammer was young and fat. Not a day more than thirty, his face, save for the adumbrated puff sacks under the eyes, was as smooth and lineless as a boy's. The talk soon centered down to business. Dowsett broached the plan, aided by an occasional remark from the other two, while Daylight asked questions. Whatever the proposition was, he was going into it with his eyes open. And they filled his eyes with the practical vision of what he had in mind.

"They will never dream you are with us," Guggenhammer interjected, as the outlining of the matter drew to a close, his handsome Jewish eyes flashing enthusiastically. "They'll think you are raiding on your own in proper buccaneer style."

"Of course, you understand, Mr. Harnish, the absolute need for keeping our alliance in the dark," Nathaniel Letton warned, gravely.

Daylight nodded his head. "And you also understand," Letton went on, "that the result can only be productive of good. The thing is legitimate and right, and the only ones who may be hurt are the stock gamblers themselves. It is not an attempt to smash the market. As you see yourself, you are to bull the market. The honest investor will be the gainer."

"Yes, that's the very thing," Dowsett said. "The commercial need for copper is continually increasing. Ward Valley Copper, and all that it stands for—practically one-quarter of the world's supply, as I have shown you—is a big thing, how big, even we can scarcely estimate. Our arrangements are made. We have plenty of capital ourselves, and yet we want more. Also, there is too much Ward Valley out to suit our present plans. Thus we will kill both birds with one stone. Not only will you bull Ward Valley, but you will at the same time gather Ward Valley in. This will be of inestimable advantage to us, while you and all of us will profit by it as well. And as Mr. Letton has pointed out, the thing is legitimate and square. On the eighteenth the directors meet, and, instead of the customary dividend, a double dividend will be declared."

"There will be all sorts of rumors on the street," Dowsett warned Daylight, "but do not let them frighten you. These rumors may even originate with us. You can see how and why clearly. But rumors are to be no concern of yours. You are on the inside. All you have to do is buy, buy, buy, and keep on buying to the last stroke, when the directors declare the double dividend. Ward Valley will jump so that it won't be feasible to buy after that."

"And one other thing, Mr. Harnish," Guggenhammer said, "if you exceed your available cash, or the amount you care to invest in the venture, don't fail immediately to call on us. Remember, we are behind you."

"Yes, we are behind you," Dowsett repeated.

Nathaniel Letton nodded his head in affirmation.

CHAPTER VIII.

Back at his hotel, though nearly two in the morning, he found the reporters waiting to interview him. Next morning there were more. And thus, with blare of paper trumpet, was he received by New York. Once more, with beating of tom-toms and wild hulla-balloo, his picturesque figure strode across the printed sheet. The King of the Klondike, the hero of the Arctic, the thirty-million-dollar millionaire of the North, had come to New York. What had he come for? To trim the New Yorkers as he had trimmed the Tonopah crowd in Nevada?

They were prepared for him to play, and, when heavy buying of Ward Valley began, it was quickly decided that he was the operator. Financial gossip buzzed and hummed. He was after the Guggenhammers once more. The story of Ophir was told over again and sensationalized until even Daylight scarcely recognized it. Still, it was all grist to his mill. The stock gamblers were clearly befuddled. Each day he increased his buying, and so eager were the sellers that Ward Valley rose but slowly. A wildly exciting time was his during the week preceding Thursday the eighteenth. Not only was he gambling as he had never gambled before, but he was gambling at the biggest table in the world for stakes so large that even the case-hardened habitués of that table were compelled to sit up. In spite of the unlimited selling, his persistent buying compelled Ward Valley steadily to rise, and as Thursday approached, the situation became acute. Something had to smash. How much Ward Valley was this Klondike gambler going to buy? How much could he buy? What was the Ward Valley crowd doing all this time? Daylight appreciated interviews with them that appeared—interviews delightfully placid and non-committal. Leon Guggenhammer even hazarded the opinion that this Northland Croesus might possibly be making a mistake. But not that they cared, John Dowsett explained. "It is purely gambling from beginning to end," were Nathaniel Letton's words; "and we refuse to have anything to do with it or to take notice of it in any way."

During this time Daylight had several secret meetings with his partners—one with Leon Guggenhammer, one with John Dowsett, and two with Mr. Howison. Beyond congratulations, they really amounted to nothing; for, as he was informed, everything was going satisfactorily. But on Tuesday morning a rumor that was disconcerting came to Daylight's ears. It was also published in the Wall Street Journal, and it was to the effect, on apparently straight inside information, that on Thursday, when the directors of Ward Valley met, instead of the customary dividend being declared, an assessment would be levied. It was the first check Daylight had received. It came to him with a shock that if the thing were so he was a broken man. And it also came to him that all this colossal operating of his was being done on his own money. Dowsett, Guggenhammer and Letton were risking nothing. It was a panic, shortlived, it was true, but sharp enough while it lasted to make him remember Holdsworth and the brick-yard, and to impel him to cancel all buying orders while he rushed to a telephone.

"Nothing in it—only a rumor," came Leon Guggenhammer's throaty voice in the receiver. "As you know," said Nathaniel Letton, "I am one of the directors, and I should certainly be aware of it were such action contemplated." And John Dowsett: "I warned you against just such rumors. There is not an iota of truth in it—certainly not. I tell you on my honor as a gentleman."

Heartily ashamed of himself for his temporary loss of nerve, Daylight returned to his task. The cessation of buying had turned the Stock Exchange into a bedlam, and down all the line of stocks the bears were smashing. Ward Valley, as the apex, received the brunt of the shock, and was already beginning to tumble. Daylight calmly doubled his buying orders. And all through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning, he went on buying, while Ward Valley rose triumphantly higher. Still they sold, and still he bought, exceeding his power to buy many times over, when delivery was taken into account. What of that? On this day the double dividend would be declared, he assured himself. The pinch of delivery would be on the shorts. They would be making terms with him.

And then the thunderbolt struck. True to the rumor, Ward Valley levied the assessment. Daylight threw up his arms. He verified the report and quit. Not alone Ward Valley, but all securities were being hammered down by the triumphant bears. As for Ward Valley, Daylight did not even trouble to learn if it had fetched bottom or was still tumbling. Not stunned, not even bewildered, while Wall Street went mad, Daylight withdrew from the field to think it over. After a short conference with his brokers, he proceeded to his hotel, on the way picking up the evening papers and glancing at the head-lines. BURNING DAYLIGHT CLEANED OUT, he read; DAYLIGHT GETS HIS; ANOTHER WESTERNER FAILS TO FIND EASY MONEY.

He passed up to his rooms, ordered a Martini cocktail, took off his shoes, and sat down to think. After half an hour he roused himself to take the drink, and as he felt the liquor pass warmly through his body, his features relaxed into a slow, deliberate, yet genuine grin. He was laughing at himself.

Looting the Family Purse

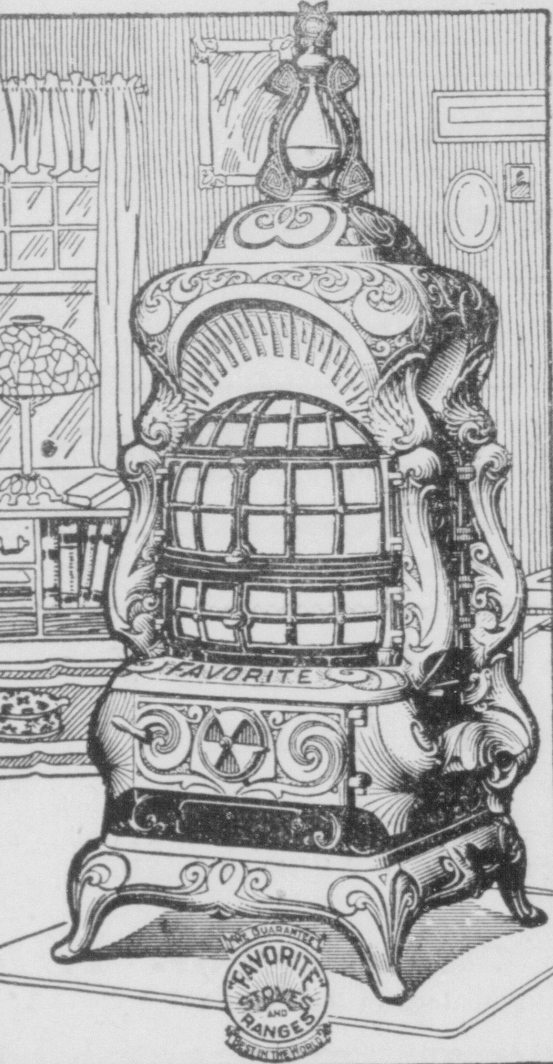

When you once pay the bill for a table or bed, the matter is closed as far as expense is concerned.

But with a stove, the first cost is only a beginning—a trifling amount when you consider the cost of the fuel that stove will consume during its lifetime.

There are a lot of heating stoves that loot the family purse---burn twice as much fuel as a FAVORITE BASE BURNER would require to do the same amount of work.

The Favorite saves one-half on coal bills and throws out more heat. There is no other Base Burner like it, for the features that make it such a wonderful and economical heater are patented.

Don't put up with the wastefulness and extravagance of a cheap stove. Buy a FAVORITE BASE BURNER. It will save you money every day it is in use, and bring such comfort and satisfaction, too.

POINTERS FOR MOTORISTS.

The average motorist has learned by experience to take proper care of the mechanism of his car, but he too often neglects his tires. Ordinary care accorded spare envelopes and tubes is good insurance, and will save the motorist much trouble and money.

A few suggestions at this time regarding the proper care of tires may benefit the reader.

Never carry spare tubes unprotected in the tool box—they will inevitably come in contact with sharp tools and greasy substances, resulting in their serious injury. It is a well known fact that oils and grease are deadly enemies to rubber.

Exposure to strong light and varying degrees of temperature is also very injurious to rubber, robbing it of its elasticity and making it brittle. All of these dangers are overcome by the use of water-proof cloth bags made especially for carrying spare inner tubes. These are supplied by all accessory dealers.

Motorists sometimes carry spare tubes in the original cardboard boxes. The jolting of the car in motion causes the tubes to chafe against the sides of the boxes, eventually weakening or even wearing away the rubber. Unless the tubes are to be stored in the garage they should always be taken from the original boxes and placed in tube bags.

Most of the above hints may also be adapted to spare envelopes—exposure to strong light and dampness being particularly injurious. An envelope should never be carried uncovered in the garage. Waterproof wrappers or cases are made especially for the protection of spare envelopes, and their use will mean a big saving to the automobile owner.

DON'TS FOR HUNTERS.

In many homes and dens guns have been taken from the hooks where they had accumulated the dust of a summer's idleness, and hunting boots, coats and caps were dragged from out of their summer hiding places.

The big event in the shooting world and one which was awaited with the greatest interest by the nimrods was the opening of the season on quail, which occurred November 10. There are many quail this year and hunters are marching forth with dog at heels to bag the little denizens of the brush.

There are some few requirements, however, that will have to be observed and it may not be out of place to enumerate them at this time.

Be sure you have a license.

Then get a permit from the land owner.

Carefully look your gun over to see that there are no defects.

And most of all be careful that you do no hunting on a game preserve of which there are several in Rush county.

Many farmers would not object to hunting on their farms if sportsmen would be considerate enough to ask for the privilege.

There are many rabbits this season and the little cottontails furnish much sport for the marksmen.

Quite a number of the nimrods have been busy already hunting the waterfowl that have been going South since the chilly weather came.

NANKING'S WAYS RAN WITH BLOOD

Greatest Slaughter of Modern Times Reported.

THE MASSACRE WAS RUTHLESS

Not Possible to Estimate the Number Whose Lives Were Sacrificed to the Hate of the Manchu Soldiers, but It Will Run Into Thousands—Republican Troops Awaiting Arrival of Ammunition to Begin Reprisals.

Nanking, Nov. 11.—Upon the innocent Chinese of this city the imperial troops descended and before their awful work was done thousands had been murdered and their bodies had been left to lie in the city streets.

With the excuse that they were striving to put down the rebellion, every person suspected of having revolutionary tendencies was killed. The Manchu soldiers did not stop with the killing of men who were no quakes. They slew women and children as they ran terror-stricken through the streets.

Thousands managed to escape from the city and to find refuge behind the lines of the rebel soldiers who are gathered about the city in numbers larger than those of the imperial troops within, but ineffective against the imperials because of the lack of ammunition. A resumption of the attack by the Republicans had been expected for several days, but the republicans' ammunition had not arrived and it was delayed. The Manchu troops, some 12,000 in number, learned of this and determined to take advantage of the opportunity. The order was given to the Manchus to kill every native who wore a bit of white, suggesting the badge of the revolutionists. The troops pounced upon the defenseless Chinese, hundreds of whom were making for the gates of the city, carrying their few belongings. The order to kill was carried out to the letter. No explanation for the presence of white about the costume, though it were only a handkerchief or the white shoes of mourners, served to stay the hand of the executioner, and with sword or rifle the unfortunate native, be he old or young, was sent to join his ancestors.

It is not possible to even attempt to estimate the number whose lives were sacrificed. Literally the streets of Nanking ran blood and the day will go down in history as one blacker than any of modern times.

The murders were followed by fires as the emptied houses of the dead were pillaged, and soon a large section of the native city had been burned.

With all the killing of the Chinese not a foreigner is known to have suffered at the hands of the soldiers, not even those who protested against the murder of the innocents.

There are 12,000 imperial and old-style soldiers entrenched on Purple Hill, resting after their awful work. Outside the city between 20,000 and 30,000 republican troops await the coming of ammunition, which is due by boat and across country from Shanghai. Within the city there is a scene of desolation unparalleled. Those who remain in Nanking are filled with dread for the future.

IN HOURLY DREAD

Pekin Continues to Expect Attack of Rebel Forces.

Pekin, Nov. 11.—Events here are still marking time. The prospective actions of Yuan Shih Kai and Chang Shao Teng respectively and the chances of rebel attack occupy all minds.

Yuan has not yet arrived, but is reported to be coming at last. He has not yet accepted the premiership and the cabinet has received ambiguous dispatches from him interpreted as an intention to urge abdication as the only means of preserving the lives and property of the Manchus.

Yuan Shih Kai is said to have refused to come to Pekin because he has heard that Prince Tsai Hsun, uncle of the child emperor, has vowed to kill him.

In the meantime Chang's influence in the situation daily increases. Many competent observers think that the future of north China rests with him as much as or more than with Yuan Shih Kai. His ability is unquestioned, while the complete confidence of the Lanchow army, which he commands, renders his powers formidable.

If stories of the massacre at Nanking are confirmed it will prove to be the worst feature of the revolution so far without the exception of Hankow. The merchants' quarter was looted and 70,000 persons are said to be fleeing the town. Awful as the present stories of butchery are, it is feared that they may be eclipsed in retaliation against the Manchus elsewhere and the effect at Pekin particularly is dreaded.

China United, Says Wu.
Shanghai, Nov. 11.—Wu Ting Fang says that the whole of China is united and that delegates of all the provinces that have revolted will meet shortly in Shanghai to elect a provisional republican government. He is willing to become the republic's foreign minister and says that he has received many telegrams indorsing his appointment.

WINS IN FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Mrs. Charity Miller Released After She Files Petition For Writ of Habeas Corpus.

JUDGE SUSTAINS THE ACTION

She Retaliates by Filing Support Suit Against Husband Asking For $40 Per Month.

Mrs. Charity Miller, an aged woman of Fountaintown, won easily in the proceedings she instituted in the circuit court Thursday to gain her freedom, as Judge Blair Friday ordered Sheriff James Moore to release her from the county jail, where she had been a prisoner since last Monday night on a mittimus issued from the court of Justice Henry Cole of Morristown, before whom she had been arraigned Monday evening in a surety of the peace proceedings brought by her husband, Albert Miller, says the Shelbyville Democrat.

The couple have been having trouble for years and have separated on several occasions. Last Sunday Mrs. Miller threatened to kill her husband and some of his relatives. She resisted arrest, but after a twenty-four hour siege she was carried captive to Morristown in a highly sensational manner.

In committing her to jail after the peace hearing Justice Cole made the mittimus read that she should be held at the jail for 200 days because she could not pay the fine of $200 and costs he had imposed following the hearing. The justice really meant to hold the woman to the circuit court in that amount of bond, but got tangled in the proceedings. A writ of habeas corpus for the prisoner, was served forthwith on the sheriff and he was ordered to have Mrs. Miller in court Friday morning. Exceptions made by the prisoner's attorneys to the sheriff's return and answer were sustained by Judge Blair and Mrs. Miller walked from the court a free woman. She left immediately to return to the home of relatives at Fountaintown. If the authorities of her home town expect to hold Mrs. Miller in a peace proceedings they must go at it in a different way from the course pursued by the Morristown justice.

Mrs. Miller filed a complaint against her husband for support in which she asked that the court order him to pay her $40 per month to be used toward paying the rent for a house for her to live in and for food, clothing and other necessities. The complaint also asks that a receiver be appointed to take charge of all her husband's property and to sell it for cash for the purpose of satisfying the judgment she hopes to get in connection with the suit. She mentions that her husband owns two houses and lots at Fountaintown, has an interest in two lots there and owns 122 acres of land in the State of Georgia.

Mrs. Miller alleges that her husband is incapacitated from making a living for her and himself on account of the alleged fact that he is an habitual drunkard. Mrs. Miller states that she is fifty-six years old and that she and Mr. Miller were married November 6, 1910. They separated May 5, 1911, but lived together again until last Sunday, the reconciliation being effected when Mr. Miller promised to support and treat her properly.

STRAUGHN MAN WINS.

The jury of eleven men, trying the case of Ott E. Hoffman of Straughn, against the P. C. C. & St. L. railroad company for $5,000 damages, returned a verdict late yesterday afternoon for the full amount asked. The evidence showed that Hoffman had been struck on the head with a piece of coal falling from a car of the railroad company. His eyesight and hearing were affected by the injury. This is the first time in the Wayne circuit court that a plaintiff received the full amount of damages when the amount asked was so large.

GERMAN MESSAGE STARTLES OPERATOR

She Receives it Though and Delivers it to Frau Karl Braun, 410 North Morgan.

MRS. BASSLER REPLIES WELL

"Sturgis, Mich., 9. Frau Karl Braun, 410 North Morgan. Ich habe zwelf Kaffee Klatschen im Sinn. Essen, trinken fuer mich. Frau Karl Bassler."

That was the message which the Western Union operator received over the wire. When she began to receive it her first impression was that some operator was trying to "slip something over." But she decided to go the operator one better and take the message anyway. "410 North Morgan" was the only language in the telegram with which she was familiar and she went to that house. Flatteringly she knocked at the door, and still hesitatingly, she told Mrs. Charles Brown, who lives there, that she supposed the message was for her.

Mrs. Brown found that it was for her. Translated it means: "Sturgis, Mich., 9. Mrs. Charles Brown, 410 North Morgan. I have twelve coffee-gossips in mind. Eat, drink for me. Mrs. Charles Bassler."

Thursday afternoon Mrs. Brown entertained the Social Dozen with a

One was sent to Mrs. Bassler, who was a member of the Social Dozen when she lived here. Mrs. Bassler's reply was very much enjoyed by the members.
